WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

December 9, 2022

Severe Storm Outlook (Update)

- Much of this system will be in the West through this weekend, spreading gradually from Washington, Oregon and California into the Rockies. Heavy snow is likely to impact travel in the Cascades, California's Sierra Nevada and interior parts of the West.
- Soaking rain and gusty winds will spread from coastal Washington and Oregon southward throughout much of California, including the Los Angeles and San Diego areas.
- Snow and strong winds will develop in the Northern Plains and upper Midwest by later Monday and especially Tuesday, possibly lasting into midweek in some areas.
- This could significantly impact travel from parts of Montana, Wyoming and Colorado into western Nebraska, the Dakotas and portions of Minnesota. Blizzard conditions are possible in some locations.
- Thunderstorms in the South could produce tornadoes, wind damage, hail and flash flooding once this storm taps into increasing Gulf of Mexico moisture during the first half of next week.
- Tuesday-Tuesday night: eastern Texas and southeastern Oklahoma into much of the lower Mississippi Valley.
- Wednesday-Wednesday night: southeastern Louisiana into southern Mississippi, southern Alabama and the western Florida Panhandle.
- These threat areas could shift in the coming days once the exact timing of the storm becomes more certain.
