WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

January 17, 2025

Potential Snow Northeast

- The FOX Forecast Center is monitoring the potential for 1-3 inches of snow to fall from Washington to Boston late Sunday before tapering off Monday.
- Exact amount of snow will depend on how the two storm systems that will move through the Northeast this weekend interact.
- The first system will be an area of low pressure extending from eastern Canada on Saturday.
- Warmer temperatures Saturday will likely bring rain to the Ohio Valley and most of the Northeast as part of this first system.
- Rain will change over to snow from roughly Ohio and Indiana up into the interior Northeast as colder air arrives.
- On Sunday, a secondary area of low pressure is looking more and more likely to develop somewhere off the coast of the Carolinas and move up the Eastern Seaboard, bringing snow with it.
