WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

April 11, 2025

Severe Weather Outlook Northeast U.S.

- Widespread soaking rain and cold temperatures for mid-April are ahead for the Northeast this weekend.
- The rounds of damp conditions will help create a flash flood threat for parts of the Interstate 95 corridor from late Friday into early Saturday.
- The jet stream dips south into the end of the workweek, which allows the low-pressure system to develop Friday off the mid-Atlantic coast.
- According to the FOX Forecast Center, as the storm moves up the coast on Friday, it may bring a few strong to severe thunderstorms to parts of coastal North and South Carolina.
- Any storms that do develop could produce large hail and damaging winds.
- 1-2 inches of rain is expected to fall from Richmond, Virginia, northward to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York City and Boston through Sunday.
- The potential for heavy rain prompted NOAA's Weather Prediction Center to issue a Level 1 out of 4 flash flood threat from North Carolina to Delaware from Friday into early Saturday morning, covering some 14 million people.
