WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

April 29, 2025

Severe Weather Outlook Central & East U.S.

- Ongoing storms from Monday night will continue moving across parts of the central U.S. early Tuesday morning.
- Storms will strengthen as they head into Ohio Valley.
- The FOX Forecast Center says the greatest threat from these storms will be damaging wind gusts and large hail, but an isolated tornado cannot be ruled out.
- The northern half of this kind of general storm system, it's really encompassing places like Syracuse, Buffalo, Erie, Cleveland, all the way down to Louisville.
- There's also a second area of this massive threat zone where people need to keep an eye on the sky Tuesday.
- FOX Weather Meteorologist Britta Merwin said. "The southern part also has a bull's-eye, a 3-out-of-5 potential here for severe weather. Part of the kicker here for Texas is going to be that potential for very large hail."
- Communities in this increased-risk zone include Wichita Falls, Abilene and Midland in Texas.

Joint Preliminary Damage Assessment Summary Mississippi (Apr 2-6)

- The National Weather Service has confirmed that at least 14 tornadoes touched down in Mississippi between April 2nd and April 6th.
- This includes two EF-3 tornadoes located in Tate County and Marshall County, along with five EF-2 tornadoes, six EF-1 tornadoes, and one EF-0 tornado.
- MEMA has received reports of damage to 414 homes, 14 businesses, and 20 farms statewide. Of the homes affected, 54 were destroyed, while 68 sustained major damage.

Michigan (Mar 28)

- Beginning on March 28, 2025, and, in some areas, lasting through March 30, 2025, northern Michigan experienced impactful winter weather that resulted in extreme and severe ice accumulation that had significant impacts to critical services throughout the region. In particular, the region has suffered widespread power outages, including loss of backup generators; loss of phone and cellular services; and impassable roads due to downed trees and other debris.
- The Michigan State Police, Emergency Management and Homeland Security Division (MSP/EMHSD) partnered with FEMA and local officials to assess the impact of the storm.
