WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

December 5, 2024

Winter Weather Outlook

- A clipper system will slide through the Northeast on Thursday, shifting the heavy snow to the eastern shores of Lake Erie and Lake Ontario.
- Winter Storm Warnings and Lake-Effect Snow Warnings are back in effect as another 7-12 inches of snow with isolated higher amounts are likely along the eastern shores of Lake Ontario and Lake Erie.
- Those areas have been digging out from the 3-5 feet of lake-effect snow accumulated since last Friday.
- Heavy snow is also likely in interior New England and into Maine from the moisture associated with the storm.
- Lighter but accumulating snow is expected across the lower elevations of upstate New York and western and northern Pennsylvania.
- Ferocious winds will blow across the Northeast as the powerful low-pressure center pushes across the region.
- Widespread gusts of 40-50 mph are likely, creating near-blizzard conditions along the lake-effect snowbelts.
- In total, nearly 60 million people from Ohio to Massachusetts, including those in cities like Washington and New York City, are included in Wind Advisories.
