WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

March 27, 2026

Flood Activity

Hawaii

- Officials are still determining the extent of destruction from back-to-back storms in Hawaii.
- FEMA teams will be on Maui through Friday to evaluate infrastructure and housing damage, a key step in determining eligibility for federal disaster aid.
- Preliminary estimates already point to extensive losses: at least $40 million in road damage alone, with residential impacts expected to reach “tens of millions” more, according to the Maui Emergency Management Agency.
- Since March 18, just after the first Kona storm, Maui officials have received at least 900 damage assessment submissions. Of those, about 600 to 700 involve residential properties and roughly 100 are commercial.
- In Kihei alone, early visual estimates suggest 80% to 90% of homes sustained some level of damage, ranging from minor flooding to major structural impacts.
- Joint assessments with FEMA are ongoing across all counties, with damage estimates expected to exceed $1 billion statewide.
