WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

January 13, 2025

Wildfire Activity

California

- The threat of renewed fire danger looms over Southern California as strong Santa Ana winds are forecast to intensify Monday night.
- The long-duration, multi-round fire weather event will last right through the middle of the week.
- The worst of the winds occurring from Tuesday through Wednesday, the FOX Forecast Center said.
- Winds are not expected to be as strong as they were during last week's historic and deadly event, they will still be strong enough to impede the firefight and cause new and existing fires to spread rapidly.
- The Palisades and Eaton fires have burned nearly 38,000 acres, and containment levels for both remain extremely low.
- A "Particularly Dangerous Situation" Fire Weather Warning has been issued for parts of Los Angeles and Ventura counties.
- The most concerning area continues to be the Palisades Fire, where wind gusts will be in the 35-50 mph range.
- Over 105k mandatory evacuations in place for Los Angeles County.
- 8 shelters open with 756 occupants.
