Tropical Activity

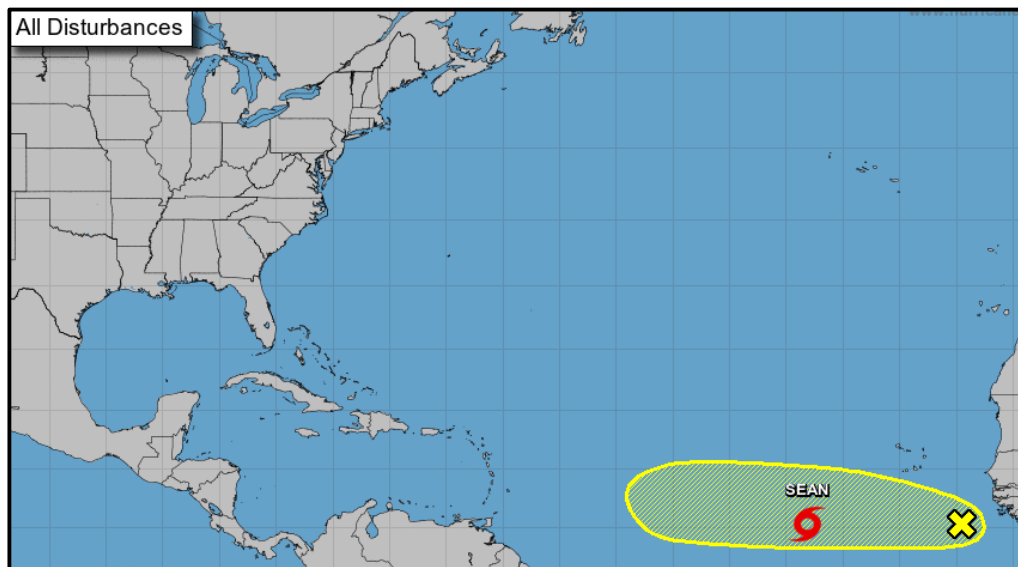

Atlantic – Tropical Storm Sean

- Tropical Storm Sean is centered more than 700 miles west-southwest of the Cabo Verde Islands and has sustained winds of 40 mph.
- The National Hurricane Center (NHC) said Sean is moving west northwestward at about 13 mph and is expected to continue toward the west-northwest or northwest during the next few days.
- Tropical Storm Sean is not expected to strengthen much over the coming days, likely remaining a low-end tropical storm.
- By early next week, Sean is expected to weaken and lose its tropical characteristics.

Atlantic – Disturbance 1

- A tropical disturbance just offshore of western Africa is producing a large area of disorganized showers and thunderstorms.
- Some gradual development of this system is possible over the next several days while it moves westward across the eastern and central tropical Atlantic.
- According to the NHC, the disturbance has a low chance of development over the next seven days.
- Formation chance through 48 hours...low...20 percent.
- Formation chance through 7 days...low...30 percent.
