Tornado Activity California

- The National Weather Service confirmed that two tornadoes touched down Monday near Corning and Vina.
- Almost 5,000 Tehama County residents lost power during Monday's large storm as the National Weather Service issued a tornado warning in the area.
- The first tornado hit the ground near Corning around 1:34 p.m., where damage, including downed trees and power lines, were found in west Corning.
- Reports of additional structure damage are under investigation, including some reports from Cal Fire-Butte County, Sacramento meteorologist Eric Kurths said.
- A second tornado was spotted touching down near Vina, south of Los Molinos, around 2:40 p.m.
- Kurths said at the time both tornadoes originated, wind and thunderstorm advisories were in place. A monitoring station in Corning observed gusts of 31 miles per hour around noon and 37 miles per hour at 3 p.m.
- The strong line of local thunderstorms may have combined with a "high sheer" environment which means it helped produce rotational wind energy, he said.
- 39 tornadoes were reported from 2010-2020, which means there are about 4 tornadoes a year, according to NWS.
