Tropical Activity

Atlantic – Disturbance 1

- The 2023 Atlantic hurricane season will officially end on Nov. 30, but the Caribbean is not yet ready to shut down.
- An area of disturbed weather over the southwestern Caribbean Sea is currently producing a broad area of showers and thunderstorms, and environmental conditions appear favorable for additional development of this system.
- Forecasters at the NHC said a tropical depression will likely form toward the end of this week as the system begins moving northeastward across the western and central Caribbean Sea.
- Regardless of development, the NHC said the system has the potential to produce heavy rain over portions of the Caribbean coast of Central America and the Greater Antilles toward the end of this week.
- If a tropical storm forms, it will be named Vince – the second-to-last name on the 2023 Atlantic Basin naming list.
- Formation chance through 48 hours: Low (near 10%)
- Formation chance through 7 days: High (70%)
