October 4, 2024

Tropical Activity

Atlantic – Disturbance 1

- A tropical or subtropical depression or storm could form during the early to middle part of next week if the low remains separate from a frontal boundary that is forecast to extend across the Gulf of Mexico next week.
- Regardless of tropical or subtropical development, locally heavy rains could occur over portions of Mexico during the next few days and over portions of the Florida Peninsula late this weekend into next week.
- Formation chance: 48-hour – Low (0%); 7-day – Medium (40%)

Atlantic – Tropical Storm Leslie

- Leslie is located more than 645 miles to the west-southwest of the Cabo Verde Islands and is moving to the west.
- Steady strengthening is expected, and Leslie is forecast to become the next Atlantic hurricane by Saturday.
- Leslie is expected to remain over the open waters of the Atlantic Ocean for the time being as it gradually turns west northwestward over the next couple of days.

Atlantic –Hurricane Kirk

- Parts of northwestern Europe are on alert for a significant storm system with origins in the tropical Atlantic.
- It will eventually target locations such as the United Kingdom and France with heavy rainfall, rough seas and damaging wind gusts.
- Impacts beginning late in the upcoming workweek as the storm system loses its heat source from the warm Atlantic Ocean and becomes known as a post-tropical cyclone.
- Forecast models show upwards of 5 inches of rainfall will be possible from Kirk’s remnants, as well as wind gusts that could approach hurricane-force.
