WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

March 11, 2019

Severe Weather & Flooding Activity

Tennessee (February 2019)

- The Tennessee Emergency Management Agency (TEMA) is keeping its State Emergency Operations Center in Nashville operational as officials monitor weather conditions.
- Damage assessments are expected to continue for several weeks. The flood waters will need to recede entirely in many locations for thorough damage assessments to occur.
- Four major thoroughfares remain impassable, including I-24 East in Davidson County, Hwy. 70 in Hawkins County, Hwy. 111 By-Pass in Livingston, and I-40 at the Tennessee and North Carolina line, which is open to one lane in each direction due to a previous rock slide.
- Knox County Emergency Management has released figures on assessments of local properties following recent flooding.
- The Knox County Emergency Management Agency said it assessed 1,174 properties for damage following heavy rains and flooding in late February.
- Of those, 775 were affected, 215 had minor damage, 109 suffered major damage and 35 were destroyed. Fourteen of the 35 properties that were destroyed were businesses.
- Only 40 that were assessed were determined to have no damage.
