Tornado Activity

Florida

- A team of investigators from the Federal Emergency Management Agency and Small Business Administration were due to arrive Tuesday in Lee County for a detailed formal inspection of the damage caused by Sunday's tornado.
- The assessment is expected to begin Wednesday morning, officials said.
- "There is tremendous damage. It is isolated in an area near McGregor. Three mobile home parks got the brunt of the damage," said Sandra Tapfumaneyi, public safety director for emergency management.
- Lee County estimates the tornado caused $7.1 million in damage to residential property and $1.2 million to commercial sites.
- The EF2 twister that hit the Fort Myers area Sunday was the first since Jan 9, 2016, bringing 118 mph winds to several communities.
- Dozens of mobile homes were destroyed in Iona, and trees were crumpled and twisted along McGregor Boulevard.
- Lee County's estimates on the damage as of Tuesday morning were that 44 homes were destroyed and are categorized as total losses; 90 homes sustained major damage and 93 had minor damage. One hundred structures were said to have been otherwise affected by the storm.

Severe Storm Activity

Kentucky

- Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear declared a state of emergency on Saturday, January 1st, as powerful storms ripped through the state.
- The weather event generated heavy rain, thunderstorms, tornadoes, hail and strong straight-line winds and caused flash flooding, loss of power and damage to public infrastructure and private properties.
- At least seven landslides were reported as well as washouts.
- Multiple water rescues were needed in Green County, in central Kentucky as floodwaters rose.
- Others needed rescue in Pike County, in the far eastern part of the state. The water there rose high enough to enter and damage homes and churches, Kentucky Today reported.
- Pike County Emergency Management Director Doug Tackett said they expect more than 100 homes and buildings were flooded.
- Preliminary damage assessments for Individual Assistance will begin tomorrow, January 20th, in 3 counties.
