WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

February 14, 2023

Severe Weather Outlook

- Severe thunderstorms will ramp up Wednesday evening from northeastern Texas to southern Missouri and expand eastward to western portions of Mississippi and Tennessee into overnight. Once again cities that could be at a heightened risk of severe weather on Wednesday evening and night include Longview, Texas, Shreveport, Louisiana, and Little Rock.

- On Thursday, the risk of violent thunderstorms and tornadoes will shift eastward with a heightened risk in the states of Mississippi and Alabama -- a zone where there have been dozens of tornadoes so far this winter. The severe weather threat on Thursday either from tornadoes or strong wind gusts will extend along a 900-mile-long swath from near the central Gulf coast to around the lower Great Lakes region.

Another zone where there is a heightened risk of severe thunderstorms amidst the stormy pattern will focus on Ohio and portions of southern Indiana and northern Kentucky on Thursday. While the threat for tornadoes will be lower in the northern zone, storms in that area will likely pack more of a punch in terms of damaging wind gusts and power outages.
