WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

January 4, 2022

Winter Storm Activity

- A potent winter storm packing heavy snow moved across the South and mid-Atlantic on Monday, snarling traffic, causing five deaths, nearly 850,000 power outages and shutting down much of the federal government in Washington.
- As of midafternoon Monday, there were several reports of at least 10 inches of snow in Virginia, Maryland, New Jersey and North Carolina.
- Five deaths were reported due to the weather.
- More than half the flights at Washington's three major airports were either delayed or canceled Monday morning, FlightAware said. A quarter of the flights at New York's three major airports were delayed or canceled.
- The storm produced gusty winds, which contributed to power outages in parts of the Southeast and mid-Atlantic, Weather.com said.
- Almost 850,000 homes and businesses had lost electricity in Virginia, Georgia, Tennessee and the Carolinas as of midday Monday, according to poweroutage.us, but power was slowly restored throughout the day with about 500,000 still without power as of 6 p.m.
- New Jersey Gov. Phil Murphy issued had issued a state of emergency for five southern New Jersey counties on Sunday night.
